A Global View, With Context

Project Presentation: Visual Identity & Interface Design

Go Skills Challenge 2026

Brand Concept:

ONU TODAY is a global communication platform focused on contextualizing news and humanitarian initiatives. The interface is designed to eliminate visual noise, prioritizing rapid legibility and accessibility for a diverse international audience.

Color Palette

The primary Institutional Blue (UN Blue) is used on initial screens and highlighted elements, conveying trust, peace, diplomacy, and global authority. White and neutral tones ensure high contrast for buttons, input fields, and reading areas, allowing for fluid navigation without visual fatigue.

Typography (Sans-Serif)

Modern, geometric, and clean typography (matching the "ONU TODAY" brand and the slogan "A Global View, With Context").

Typography (Hierarchy):

Clear differentiation between impactful headlines (bold uppercase), stylized slogans, and body text, guaranteeing excellent scanability while reading news.

The logo concept for ONU TODAY synthesizes the essence of diplomacy, accessibility, and direct global journalism.

The heavy weight of "TODAY" combined with the solid blocks guarantees immediate readability, even on very small screens (like in the app)

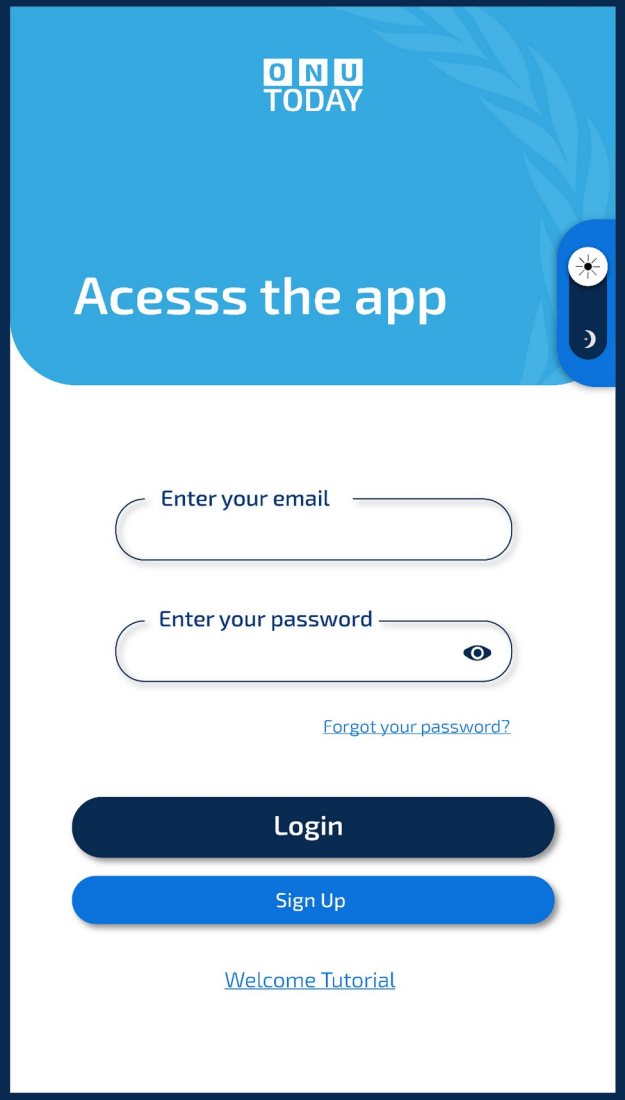

The acronym "ONU" appears inside three solid vertical blocks.

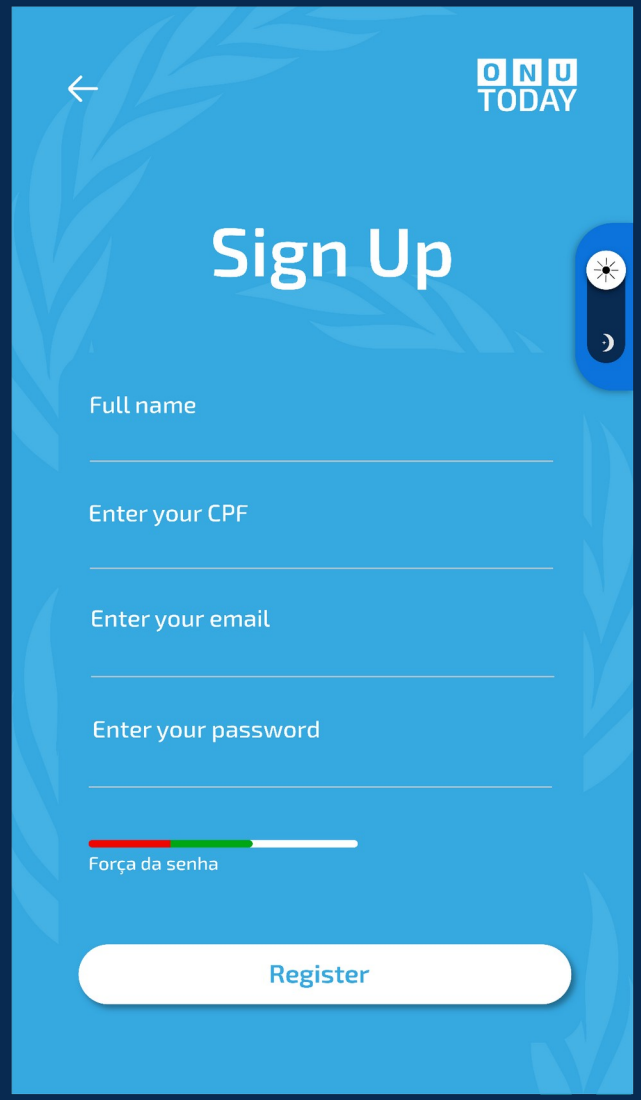

This visual choice symbolizes transparency, institutional structure, and the idea that information is presented in an organized, fundamental, and contextualized manner.

The modern sans-serif typography projects agility, journalistic neutrality, and a contemporary feel.

Usability & UX

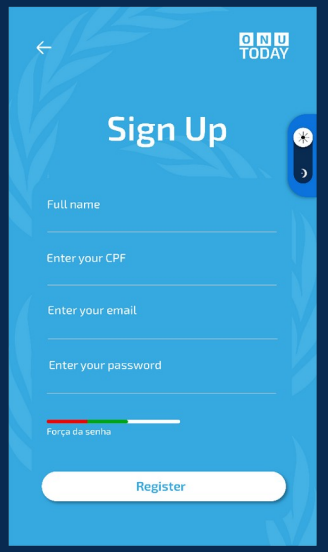

Frictionless Flow: Login, Sign Up, and Welcome Tutorial screens are organized into few steps, with a visual cue for password strength to increase the user's feeling of security.

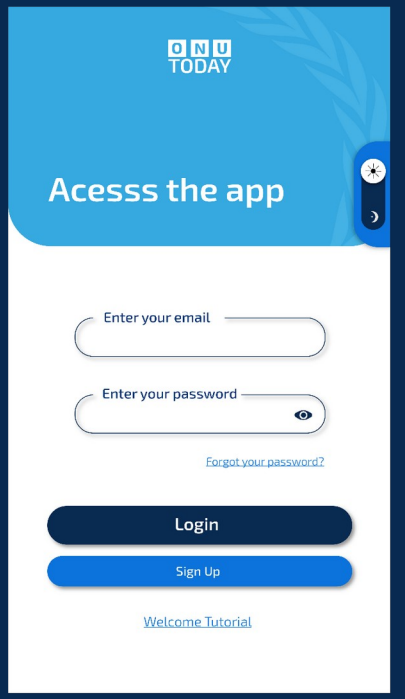

UI (Minimalist & Card-Based)

News presented in modular cards with vector images, time markers (e.g., "4H"), and colored tags by category, facilitating spatial organization and dynamic reading.

Symbolic Elements

Soft watermark graphics in the background (resembling olive branches, referencing the UN logo) reinforce the institutional identity elegantly without distracting the user.

The Problem

I identified that after logging in, the reader needs to quickly access the most relevant news to stay updated, without having to click through too many menus.

The Solution (Home)

I designed the "Home" screen to function as the heart of the application, eliminating any friction between the user and the news.

UX/UI Experience

Using a horizontal category filter (All, News, Social, Health, Culture, Earth) allows the reader to personalize their experience in a single gesture, putting total control in their hands.

Combined with a well-organized list of news cards,this provides a seamless flow from login straight to content consumption, fulfilling the core utility of the app.

Game Changer / Differentiator

The core differentiator of this solution

The alignment between the modular, structured visual identity and the frictionless user experience.

Why this matters

While other news apps rely on heavy imagery and cluttered interfaces, ONU TODAY delivers a "Global View with Context".

We strip away the noise to prioritize what truly matters: clean, organized, and highly accessible global news, presented with the speed and clarity the modern world demands.
